Expert opinions and evaluations:

The number of doctoral students defending their dissertations with me as their first adviser is now well over 20; several of them are now professors in their own right. I am frequently called upon to serve on committees screening candidates for research assistantships, lectureships and professorships. I have also been engaged as an expert within the fields of political science, public administration and political communication by the Finnish Academy, Helsinki, the Swedish and Norwegian Social Science Research Councils and the Foundation for Baltic and East European Studies.
